Overall, the training program under URGENT Project successfully addressed the urgent need, equipping us with essential skills in GIS and environmental research. The strengths of the program revolved around comprehensive curriculum, hands on experience, expert guidance and effective case studies. The knowledge and experience gained will undoubtedly contribute to our continued academic and professional growth. The collaborative and expert-driven environment fostered at the University of Catania Italy laid a solid foundation for future research and professional endeavors. I extend my sincere gratitude to the faculty and organizers for their exceptional efforts in making this training program a resounding success.
